

OLE AGERSNAP

609-510-6709 – agersnap@proton.me – Washington, DC 20009

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

JPMorganChase Institute

Research Lead, Vice President

Washington, DC
August 2024 – Present

- Economic researcher at a think-tank within JPMorganChase, publishing freely accessible insights for the public good using proprietary bank data
- Responsible for setting up a new research area on middle market firms, including developing a codebase from scratch for new transaction-level data covering over 60,000 clients of J.P. Morgan Commercial Banking
- Initial reports estimated impacts of recent tariffs on middle market businesses, covered by over 30 media outlets
- Managerial responsibility for one research associate

Goldman Sachs

Analyst

London, UK
June 2016 – June 2017

- Produced research to model global economic risks and guide investment decisions for $60 billion of assets under the Global Portfolio Solutions group within Goldman Sachs Asset Management
- Developed models to predict e.g. China's future housing demand and sovereign debt sustainability
- Presented results independently to clients and internal stakeholders including firm partners

EDUCATION

Princeton University

PhD Economics

Princeton, NJ
May 2024

- General Exams: Public Economics, Industrial Organization
- Extensive experience working with large datasets, including government register data
- Research on areas including taxation and transfers, labor supply, inheritance, and geographical mobility leading to two peer-reviewed top journal publications
- Work received media coverage in outlets including The Economist, MarketWatch, Frankfurter Allgemeine

London School of Economics and Political Science

MSc Econometrics and Mathematical Economics

London, UK
June 2016

- Graduated with Distinction (highest honor)

Aarhus University

BSc Mathematics-Economics

Aarhus, Denmark
August 2014

- GPA: 11.75 out of 12

ACADEMIC PUBLICATIONS

“The Tax Elasticity of Capital Gains and Revenue-Maximizing Rates”, with Owen Zidar. American Economic Review: Insights, 3 (4): 399-416. 2021

“The Welfare Magnet Hypothesis: Evidence from an Immigrant Welfare Scheme in Denmark”, with Amalie Sofie Jensen and Henrik Kleven. American Economic Review: Insights, 2 (4): 527-42. 2020

HONORS, AWARDS, AND OTHER ACTIVITIES

- Teaching Assistant at Princeton University (Public Finance, Junior Independent Work), London School of Economics (Introductory Economics) and Aarhus University (Microeconomics 2, Investment & Finance)
- Princeton University Department of Economics Graduate Teaching Prize, 2021 and 2023
- Associated Researcher, Skatteforsk Research Center, NMBU, Norway, February 2022 – September 2024
- Board Member, DAEiNA (Danish Academic Economists in North America), 2018 – 2023

SKILLS AND INTERESTS

- Programming/Statistical Software: Python, Scala, Stata (extensive experience); SQL, R, Julia, MATLAB (some experience)
- Languages: Danish, English, German (fluent); Swedish, Norwegian (working proficiency); French (basic)
- Interests: Choral singing, music, puzzles, board games, geography, chess